

Agreement on the Conservation of Albatrosses and Petrels

Second Meeting of the Parties

Christchurch, New Zealand, 13 – 17 November 2006

Changes in the Conservation Status of Albatrosses and Petrels

Author: Advisory Committee

CHANGES IN THE CONSERVATION STATUS OF ALBATROSSES AND PETRELS

Article VIII 12.b) requires that the Meeting of Parties, at each of its ordinary sessions, consider actual and potential changes in the conservation status of albatrosses and petrels, and the habitats important for their survival, as well as the factors that may affect them.

The Advisory Committee noted at its second meeting that there had been no changes in the conservation status of any of the species listed on Annex 1 to the Agreement, and that they had not received any reports of there having been any significant changes to the habitats important for their survival.

Parties are requested to:

- Advise if there are any actual changes or potential changes to the Conservation status of Annex 1 species, or to their habitats.
